

Homescapes

Summary

Homescapes is all about helping the main character, Austin, renovate his parent's mansions. He starts to miss home and moves back in with his parents, Olivia and William, who tell him that they are planning to sell the mansion because it's in bad condition. Not only do they talk about the renovations costing too much, but they also point out that their ages won't allow them to do the work themselves. Austin tries to convince his parents to change their mind and tells them that he'll work as a butler to afford the renovations. The player needs to collect stars during gameplay, which is what's used to unlock the various renovations. As players get farther into the story, they learn more about Austin's parents and details of his childhood.

This game is very similar to others out there and you have to clear boards by matching 3 or more of the same item. You'll have a limited number of moves and you'll need to try and clear the board before you run out. As you beat levels, you'll start leveling up and getting more powerups that are designed to help you win. You can also earn powerups by combining a certain number of items. For example, you'll get a disco ball if you match 5 or more in one line and you'll get a rocket by matching 4 in one line. # Gameplay

There might be levels where you make more than 1 powerup as you're playing through. If they happen to be next to each other, you can swipe them and they'll combine to give more powerful plays. For instance, 2 rockets will clear 1 column and 1 row, while 2 rainbow balls will clear the entire board. If you still have moves and haven't reached the goal, the board will refill and you can continue playing. There are many different events that will give players a chance at getting exclusive rewards.
