Facebook Messenger

Facebook Messenger is an application made by Facebook that allows users to instant message others. Users can either chat with people on their friends list or people that they've just met. In addition to basic messaging, users can also send photos, videos, emojis, and gifs. Users can have the messenger downloaded without having the Facebook application installed and vice versa.

This application gives users many options to have a more personalized experience. In addition to choosing light or dark mode for the messenger, users can do a lot of other things. This includes changing the display names in each chat, setting their reaction bar, and send or receive payments. You can find exactly what you're looking for by searching for a specific word or phrase. You can also easily find photos and videos shared in different chats by looking at the settings.

With many updates and new features, Facebook Messenger is still one of the most popular instant messaging applications on the market. Since users can choose many different settings and customization options, they can have an experience that's tailored specifically for them. ## Key Features

A few key features of Facebook Messenger are listed below.

Watch Together

With Facebook Messenger, you can easily share a video and watch it with the person you're chatting with. They can also share a video of their choosing if they want to. This doesn't only include short videos and you have the ability to watch full-length movies as well. You can start sharing with a few clicks and you'll need to make sure you're connected to some kind of internet or data.

Payments

If you need to send or receive a payment, but don't have any other way to do it, then you can use this application. You'll be able to send or request whatever amount you need and the other person can approve or deny it. You'll be able to assign an account to the Facebook Pay that will be used to send and receive funds.

360 Degree Photos

If you've ever been somewhere and wish you could show another person, then the 360 degree photos are a great option for you. You can take a photo of the surroundings all around you and the person you send it to will feel like they are right there with you. They'll be able to move their phone to see the different views and have the same feeling of turning to look in real life.

Games/Filters

A final key feature of Facebook Messenger is the ability to play games or use filters. There are always a few games to choose from and they are very easy to get the hang of. Similarly, there are tons of filters and backgrounds that you can apply to have a little fun. Keep in mind, different types of phones might have different options, so you could have different things to choose from than the person you're chatting with.

Conclusion

Facebook Messenger is a great application for those that are trying to keep in contact with others. Not only can you share personal videos or photos, but you can play games and use filters to keep things fun. You can choose to block someone if they are bugging you or make it so messages from unknown people can be filtered.
